

Statement on the arbitrary arrest of Georgian lawyer Eduard Marikashvili

Georgian lawyer and human rights defender Eduard Marikashvili has been arrested during a demonstration in front of the parliament building in Tbilisi, Georgia. He was arrested for hooliganism and disobedience of legal order of the police under articles 166 and 173 of the Administrative Offences Code of Georgia. His hearing before the Tbilisi Citi Court takes place on 23 June 2023.

Mr. Marikashvili is a lawyer and human rights defender specialized in criminal law and juvenile justice. He has been working with the Georgian NGO “Georgian Democracy Initiative” (GDI)¹ as part of the legal team since 2014, and is currently the chair of the organisation since 2021.

On 2 June, Mr. Marikashvili learnt that the police was illegally arresting demonstration participants near the parliament building. The peaceful protests were initiated to demonstrate against the Georgian governments’ foreign policy after the Georgian prime minister said at the Global Security Forum, which took place on May 30 in Bratislava, that one of the reasons for the start of the war between Russia and Ukraine was Ukraine's intention to become a member of NATO.² As Mr. Marikashvili found that the constitutional rights of the activists present at the protest were being violated, he joined the demonstration to support colleagues and activists being arrested. Among the persons detained during the demonstration was a defense lawyer, who was released shortly after his arrest.

At the demonstration, Mr. Marikashvili was holding a blank white paper. After forcibly grabbing the paper, the police officers arrested Mr. Marikashvili as well as some other activists.³ Mr. Marikashvili and the detained activists were not allowed to contact their lawyers for several hours. They were transferred from the capital to Telavi in a temporary holding cell and were released only after the maximum holding period of 48 hours had passed.

Mr. Marikashvili was charged with hooliganism and disobedience of legal order of the police under articles 166 and 173 of the Administrative Offences Code of Georgia. His case is being heard by Tbilisi City Court on June 23, 2023.
